Volunteering at the Library

The Library welcomes and encourages people of all ages to volunteer.

Assistance is needed to check-in and pre-sort books and other items; work at the used book store; help with adult and children's programs; assist with special events, such as Children's Day and the adult Spelling Bee; filing and typing; data entry; prepare mailings; etc. ICPL volunteers range in age from third grade to teens to seniors.

Persons interested in volunteering should call the Volunteer Assistant in the ICPL Development Office at 356-5200, Ext. 150 during regular business hours. A volunteer application form can be picked up at the Information or Circulation Desks or Business Office.

The ICPL Friends Foundation and Development Office

The ICPL Development Office coordinates the Friends Foundation's ongoing efforts to raise private contributions to enhance the Library's operations and acquisitions budgets. The office also produces the Library's bi-monthly newsletter, The Window; helps coordinate the Library's promotion and public relations programs; and coordinates the recruitment and placement of Library volunteers.

The 24-member Friends Foundation Board of Directors oversees ICPL fund raising, which includes the Annual Fund (used by the Library to add books and materials to the collection); increasing and managing the Library's endowment; and raising private contributions for special Library needs and programs. The Foundation Board is conducting a $3.5 million campaign for the Library expansion and increasing the endowment.

The seven-member Book End Committee, a standing committee of the Foundation Board, oversees the operation of The Book End used bookstore. The Book End Committee has pledged at least $25,000 in net proceeds to the capital campaign for the Library expansion project.

The operation of the Development Office is funded through non-tax revenues. For information about supporting the Library and serving on the Friends Foundation Board or Book End Committee, contact Barbara Curtin, at 356-5200, Ext. 149.
